About travel

Go to Star author travel agency invites you to China.

Ancient, mysterious, amazing China promises to become a new travel trend for the next 5 years. Like Russia, it is one of the few countries in the world where everyone can spend their dream vacation without having to choose between nature, interesting cultural heritage, modern art and gastronomy. An ancient civilization with a fascinating history of thousands of years, amazes with the monumental Great Wall of China, the mysteries of the Forbidden City and the tall skyscrapers of Beijing, the majestic mountains of the Zhangjiajie National Forest Park, known from the film "Avatar", and the incredible acrobatics of the art of Kung Fu, the achievements of traditional medicine, popular all over the world. The Chinese were the first in the world to teleport photons from Earth into orbit and surprised everyone with a giant leap of progress. In three decades the cities have become high-tech, the quality of life has increased, but the traditions have not gone anywhere, which makes the Celestial Empire a unique, original country as from another planet — incredibly interesting, comfortable to visit and friendly.

With this trip Go to Star opens the cycle of tours to China. We have compiled the program of a small 9-day tour to accommodate the most iconic sights of China and the most impressive and diverse activities — from walking through the closed part of the Forbidden City to ride on cable car to Tianmen mountain — at a comfortable pace. The tour is ideal for a first introduction to China during a vacation with children.

Hangzhou

Hangzhou is one of the seven ancient capitals of China, founded over 2,000 years ago. Marco Polo once called Hangzhou a paradise city, and today it still holds the title of one of the most beautiful in China: the picturesque West Lake, countless pagodas, temples, botanical gardens and famous tea plantations.

The city's calling card is the sacred for Buddhists Leifeng Pagoda, founded in 975 in the era of five dynasties and ten kingdoms by order of Qian Chu, the last king of Wuyue. It is located on the shore of the picturesque West Lake, and despite the proximity of the metropolis, this place breathes serenity and harmony, and lotuses bloom on the water surface in summer.

The Great Wall of China

The Great Wall of China — one of the most famous and impressive cultural monuments of China, and also — the longest artificial construction in the world. Its length is more than 21 thousand kilometers, and to walk along it, it will take more than a year and a half.

Now most of the wall is in a ruined state, but many sections have been restored and opened for tourists. Sections of the wall near Beijing, such as Badaling, Mutianyu and Simatai, allow you to climb up and enjoy views of the surrounding scenery, fortresses, towers and temples, many of which date back to the Ming dynasty. During the tour, you will drive to one of the sections of the wall where there are almost no tourists, and in almost complete solitude you will be able to see and feel the full power of the unique monument.

Zhangjiajie National Park

Remember the incredible soaring mountains in the movie Avatar? It seems that all this is a skillful computer graphics, but in fact the prototype of fantastic landscapes were the mountains in the Zhangjiajie National Forest Park, where the movie was filmed. Back in the 90's the park was included in the list of UNESCO World Heritage Sites — and it's not just the mountains. Hundreds of species of flowers, shrubs and trees grow among the picturesque sandstone and quartz pillars, red-listed golden pheasants and Chinese giant salamanders — the largest amphibians in the world.

Shanghai Ocean Aquarium

Opened in 2002, the Shanghai Ocean Aquarium is home to China's endangered aquatic life. There are over 450 species of marine animals in total, including dolphins, whales, sharks, sea lions, and jellyfish — all housed in different zones, each representing a different type of marine environment.

The highlight of the ocean aquarium is the 120-meter underwater tunnel, one of the largest in the world. The route passes through coastal reefs, open ocean, caves, shark cove and coral reef. And after the impressive walk, you can watch a show featuring dolphins and sea lions.

China

Yuyuan Garden

Yuyuan Garden is an example of ancient architecture from the Ming Dynasty in southeastern China, built in the Suzhou architectural style in 1577. Over the centuries it has been restored many times, and now on an area of more than 2.5 hectares you can see not destroyed architectural monuments, but the very paths, pavilions and pagodas, 500-year-old magnolia and bamboo thickets, which contemplated the emperors of the past.

In the Garden of Joy, you can not only admire the landscaping, but also look into the Book Study, Chamber of the Ten Thousand Flowers and Yuhua Hall. The galleries display rare examples of traditional paintings, calligraphy and porcelain ware.

China

Baisha Village

The traditional village of the Naxi people, located 10 kilometers from Lijiang City, will take you to a different China and take you centuries back in time. There are no high-rise buildings or offices here — the locals still live in ancient dwellings, wear traditional clothes, use unique pictography as a script, keep the secrets of national medicine and even conduct shamanic rituals. Two important trade routes once passed through this village: the Great Silk Road and the Tea Road.

Connoisseurs of Chinese culture come here to view rare murals created over 1,000 years by Dongba artists and Tibetan lamas — unique examples of Chinese mural painting.

China

Traditional Chinese cuisine

Chinese cuisine, the foundations of which were laid in the 5th millennium BC, are bright flavors, unusual ingredients and the combination of incongruous. Gastronomy here has always been different from European gastronomy: for Celestial residents it is a real art, and balanced diet, visual aesthetics and minimal heat treatment.

The calling card of Chinese cuisine is Peking duck, the recipe for which was first written down by court physician Hu Sihui in 1330. The secret of duck is not only in the method of cooking, but also in the choice of the bird itself.
